P R E F A C E.

"A Dictionary, Hindoostanee and English, originally compiled for his own private use by Capt. Joseph Taylor; revised and prepared for the press, with the assistance of learned natives in the College of Fort William, by W. Hunter, M.D.," was published at Calcutta in 1808; and, subsequent to the decease of those authors, when their production had become out of print and rarely to be procured, the first edition of the present work, founded on Capt. Taylor and Dr. Hunter's, and intended to meet the urgent demand of the publick both at home and in India, was passed through the press, at London, in 1817.

But, though a great part of the materials of this publication was taken from the stock which Capt. Taylor and Dr. Hunter had collected, yet such alterations and additions were made as could not be attributed to those authors. Certain portions of their work were, for the sake of brevity, remodeled and curtailed; a different method of denoting oriental vocal sounds by roman letters was adopted; and additions of words, which a farther acquaintance with the language proved to be necessary, were abundantly made in the first edition as well as in the subsequent one of 1820: to this third edition, moreover, besides a still greater increase of words in the body of the work, a copious Index is subjoined, by means of which the publication will prove well fitted to serve, also, as a reversed, or English and Hindustani Dictionary.

In India, extensive as it is, and peopled by many different races of men, variety of dialect must be expected to occur in the most prevalent colloquial language, whether denominated zabān-i-urdū, rekhta, hindī, Hindūstānī, or Dakhanī; and words of common use in some parts may appear strange, or be even unintelligible, to the inhabitants of others. Thus, though the language here treated of, and which most generally prevails in Hindustan proper or in the Dakhan, at Delhi, Agra, Hyderabad, or in the Carnatic, is essentially one and the same; yet, through so wide a range of country, differences will present themselves in various particulars of speech. With a view, therefore, to extend the utility of the work, many words, gathered from Dakhani compositions in manuscript or in print, old or modern, are now inserted; and, when they are supposed to be peculiar to that dialect, they are marked as such, for the purpose of distinction.

Of the productions in print from which extracts have been made, besides Dr. Hunter's above stated, may be especially mentioned the "Prem Sagur," printed at Calcutta in 1825; "a Dictionary English and Hindostany" (by Dr. Harris), printed at Madras in 1790; "an Introduction to the Study of the Hindostany Language, as spoken in the Carnatic," printed at Madras in 1808; "Dakhee Unwari Soheilee," printed at Madras in 1824; and "Qanoon-e-islam," published by Dr. Herklots, at London, in 1832.

It may here be noticed, moreover, that the "additional" portion will be found to relate chiefly to the dialect of the Dakhan: and, collected as it was from various sources, whilst the principal part of the work was passing through the press, it is hoped that indulgence will be shewn both to the manner in which it is submitted to the publick, and to the want of certainty existing in some cases, which is indicated by a mark of interrogation, to shew that in these particulars further inquiry is needed.

Before the words herein explained, the initial roman letter of the name of the language from which each appears derived, if known, is marked; thus H. for Hindī, S. for Sanskrit, A. for Arabic, P. for Persian, T. for Turkish, G. for Greek, E. for English, and the like; but, where the derivation is unknown, U. is prefixed: and, if the word has varied in form from the original or is doubtful as to derivation, a slanting or italick letter is, by way of discrimination, generally adopted.

In denoting the pronunciation of words by italick letters, the vowels a, e, i, o, u, are intended to represent the Italian powers of the same letters; and the consonants, for the most part, convey the sounds commonly appropriated to them in English: thus,

a	corresponding to the Arabic vowel fat'ha is sounded as in "America."
ā alif-i-mamlūda , is sounded as in "all," "ball."
a or ā the alif-i-makṣūra , and sounded occasionally, as a or ā .

The initial letters or abbreviations for the parts of speech, grammatical terms, and other purposes, are generally such as are common to dictionaries, or as are well known : thus, s. or sub. or subst. for substantive, v. for verb, adj. for adjective, conj. for conjunction, adv. for adverb, part. for participle, pron. for pronoun, prep. for preposition, postpos. for postposition, interj. for interjection, m. for masculine, f. for feminine, a. for active, n. for neuter, trans. for transitive, intrans. for intransitive, poss. for possessive, sing. for singular, plur. for plural, caus. for causal, compar. for comparative, sup. or superl. for superlative, cor. or corrupt. for corruption, dim. or dimin. for diminutive, comp. for compound or compounded, comp. or compos. for composition, contr. or contract. for contraction, inflect. for inflection, met. for metonymically, fig. for figuratively, sign. for signification, 'r. for root, v. for vide, or see, q. v. for quod vide, or which see, q. d. for quod demonstrat, or which means, i. q. for idem quod. or same as, dakh. for dakhani, &c.

fishān. In the middle, between two nouns, it denotes continuity, proximity or conjunction; as, shab-ā-shab شب‌اشب, sar-ā-pā سراپا, tag-ā-pū: or, in the middle of a word, it seems in some cases redundant; as, sitangār ستمگار for sitangar ستمگر. And, at the end, it may be the alif-nidā الف نداء, sign of the vocative case; as, sākīyā ساقیا, O cup-bearer! shāhā شاها, O king! or, it may be used in an exclamation of disapprobation, praise, or grief; as, budā بدآ, how bad! khushā خوشا, how good! blessed! dareghā دریغا, what sorrow! alas! or, subjoined to adjectives, it may form abstract nouns; as, garmā گرمآ, heat, from garm گرم, hot.

In Hindī words, at the end, ā may be used to form the diminutive of a noun; as, ḍā ذآ, a very small box, from ḍī ذی: or, adjectives from substantives; as, beḥkā بهوکا, hungry, from beḥk بهوک.

ā (for ا) ā, A name of Vishnu: also, when prefixed to a word, it is an inseparable particle, signifying negation or privation; so, adherm ادرم adherm Injustice, from dherm دهرم Justice; adhen ادهن Poor, from dhen دهن Wealth.

ب

ب be, called با bā in Arabic, is the second letter of the Arabic and Persian alphabets: and, in the representation of Hindī words by the letters of these alphabets, it corresponds to the Nāgarī ब; or, with s (he) subjoined, to भ. When used numerically, according to the ايجاد or arrangement of the Arabic alphabet to signify numbers, it stands for two; hence, it is used to denote the second day of the week, Monday; and, in astronomical calculations, the sign Gemini. By way of abbreviation, moreover, it is occasionally written for the month رجب rajab, of which word it is the final letter. At the middle or end of a word, this letter is sometimes changed to ف or م: as, تپ tup for تب tab, A fever; زفان zafān for زبان zabān, Language; غزم ghuzhm for غزب ghuzhb, A grape-stone. In Persian words, too, it is occasionally interchanged with و: and in such as are borrowed or derived from the Sanskrit, it is frequently substituted for the Nāgarī letter व.

A. ب bi, prep. (always prefixed to another word) By, with, from, in, into, near, on, according to, for, towards.

P. ب ba, prep. (often prefixed to another word, but, when standing alone, written به) With, by, for, in, into, to, up to, on, upon.

s. ب (व) ba, may stand for व (वरुण) baruṇ, The god of water. It may, also, denote Sun, ocean, or water.

P. با bā prep. With, by. با آبرو bā ābrū, adv. Honourably, respectably. با اثر bā aṣar, adj. ت

ت te, in Arabic called tā, is the third letter of the Arabic and the fourth of the Persian alphabet. In the representation of Hindī words by the letters of these alphabets, it stands for the Nāgarī त or, with s (he) subjoined, for थ. When used numerically, it denotes 400, according to the abjad, or appropriation of the letters of the Arabic alphabet to represent numbers.

At the beginning of Arabic words, this letter is much used to form verbal nouns of various forms; as, تعارف from عرف, تالم from الم, تظاول from ظاول; and, prefixed to a noun, it may be the تاء القسم denoting an oath; as, تالله By God. At the end of words in that language, moreover, it may be the تاء تانيث sign of the feminine gender; as, ملكة A queen, from ملك A king; and, this termination may be adopted to restrict the noun to unity; as, تمرة A single date, from تمر; or, it may be used in the formation of infinitives or verbal nouns; as, مكافات from كفي; or, the superlative degree of some few adjectives; as, علامة (changed in Hindustani to علامة) Very learned.

At the end of Persian words, ت may represent the pronoun of the second person singular: or it may be redundant; as in بالش for بالش A pillow. In different parts of a word, it may be substituted for د (dāl); as, دنبور for دنبور A drum, زرتشت for زرتشت Zoroaster, کنیت for کنید Ye may do: and, it is also found used for ج (jīm); as, تاراج for تاراج Plunder. In some instances, too, ت suffers apocope; as, راس for راست True, دشنام for دشنام (bad name) Abuse, دشمن for دشمن (bad heart) Enemy.

ث called ثا or ثا is the fourth letter of the Arabic alphabet. It does not occur in words of Persian origin. Its sound, among the Arabs, is that of th, in the English word thin; but, the Persians and Indians give it the sound of s. In the appropriation of the letters of the Arabic alphabet to denote numbers, ث represents 500. When, moreover, Persian words are introduced into Arabic writings, this letter is sometimes used instead of ت or س; as, كيومرث for كيومرث, and تہمورث for تہمورث; and, in Arabic words the letter ي is sometimes substituted for ث; as ثالي for ثالث.

خ Called خائي منقوطة and مخيمه the seventh letter of the Arabic alphabet, is a guttural letter, uttered by compression of the top of the throat near the mouth. It has no corresponding sound in the English language, but is expressed by the Scottish pronunciation of gh in the word right. It seems to have the power of the Greek χ. Meminski says it is the ch of Poland, but pronounced somewhat more strongly. In numeration by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 600. And in astronomy, it denotes the planet Mars.

Its permutations are 1. into غ as ستیغ for spear, straight, high. تاغ for تاخ A tree fit for firewood. 2. into ص as هاك for خاك An egg. 3. into ح as حاك for خاك name of a plant (Tribulus), a caltrop thrown in the road to prevent an enemy's approach. It is substituted 1. for ص as خجير for Meridian, manner, bitter plants rejected by cattle. 2. for ق as خخماخ for چقماق A flint; جوق for جوق A multitude. In the conjugation of Persian verbs, خ of the preterite is changed in the aorist 1. into ز as پزد from بخت 2. into س as شناخت from شناخت. 3. into س as فروخت from فروخت. In derivation ك appears to be sometimes put for خ; thus, كمان A bow may be deduced from خممان Bending.

د dāl called دال or دال معجمہ is the eighth letter of the Arabic, and the tenth of the Persian alphabet. In the representation of Hindī words by the letters of these alphabets, it denotes the Nāgarī द (da); or, with s (he) subjoined, द (dha).

In the numerical application of the Arabic alphabet, د (dāl) stands for four; hence, in almanacks, it represents the fourth day of the week, Wednesday: it is, moreover, used in astronomy to denote the planet Mercury, or the sign Leo of the Zodiac.

This letter, in Persian, may be changed to ت (te); as, in بدتر for بتر Worse: or, when the next preceding letter is و, or ی, or is moveable by a short vowel, it may be converted to ذ (zāl); as استاد for استاذ A master, گنبد for گنبد A dome: (see Lumsden's Persian Gram. p. 24). And, in Arabic words of the measure افتعال, when د, ذ, or ز is the first letter of the root, د (dāl) is substituted for the servile ت (te); as, in ازدحام from زحم.

s. د د (r. دا Give) da, in compos. Giver; as

ذ

ذ Called ذال معجمه and ذال مخذ is the ninth letter of the Arabic alphabet. Its existence in Persian, except as a substitute for د (see د), appears very doubtful. It is pronounced by the Arabs like th in the English word thou; but, in Hindūstānī, its sound is not to be distinguished from that of ز z. In denoting numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 700: and, by way of abbreviation, it is written for ذو الحجه the last month of the Arabic lunar year.

If ذ be the first radical of an Arabic verb, the ت in the form افتعال is changed into د, and either the د or ذ is changed into the other of the two, which is doubled; as, from ذکر comes اذکر or اذکر.

Son of Dasaratha, and conqueror of Lankā or Ceylon. He was the seventh avatār; when the deity descended for the purpose of destroying Rāvaṇa, who, having obtained (for his devotion) a promise from Brahmā that he should not suffer death by any of the usual means, was become the tyrant and pest of mankind. The Devatās came in the shape of monkeys, as Rāvaṇa had gained no promise of safety from them; hence, Hanumāna was Rāma's general. Rūmachandra's mother's name was Kausalyā. His younger brother Bharata was son of Kekayī, who was the cause of Rāma's going to the desert to perform devotions, on the banks of the Pampā nadī, insisting that her son should reign the fourteen years that Rāma employed in the devotion. It was while performing his devotion (or during his stay in the forests) in company with Lakṣhmaṇa (his brother by Sumitrā) that, while he was absent hunting, Rāvaṇa appeared as a beggar, and enticed away Sītā; which gave rise to the war detailed in the Rāmāyaṇa. Sītā was daughter of Rājā Janaka, who had promised to give her to any person who could break a certain bow; which was done by Rūmachandra. When in the forest, he drew a circle round Sītā, and forbade her to go beyond it, and left Lakṣhmaṇa to take care of her; but Lakṣhmaṇa, hearing some noise which alarmed him for his brother, left her to seek him: then it was that Rāvaṇa appeared and enticed her out of the circle (ganḍī), and carried her off in his flying chariot. In the air Rāvaṇa was opposed by the bird Jatayu, whose wings he cut, and escaped. Rūmachandra reigned in Awadh (Ayodhyā), before Christ 1600. * रामभट्ट rām-bhaṭṭi, s. f. س sīn, usually named سین مہملہ or غیر سین the twelfth letter in the Arabic and fifteenth in the Persian alphabet, corresponds to स in Sanskrit. Its sound is that of the English s in sun, sin. In denoting numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 60. In almanacks it represents the Sun, and a sextile aspect of the planets. It is also used as an abbreviation for the salutation السلام.

It is changed (in Arabic) (1) into سادی as سادی for سادس The sixth: (2) into طست as طست for طس A bason: (3) into صلح as صلح for صلح The last day of the month; and (in Pers.) اصفہان for اسپہان (4) into دساہا as دساہا for دسہا He exposed her to deceit: (5) (in Arab. and Pers.) into فرشتہ as فرشتہ for فرشتہ Sent: (6) (in Pers.) into خروچ as خروچ for خروس A cock: (7) into فرستہ as فرستہ for فرستہ Swelling: this last substitution, also, takes place in the aorist of Persian verbs which have س before تن of the infinitive, as خواستن from خواہم: (9) (in the same tense) into بندم as بندم from بدستم: (10) into آراستن as آراستن from آراہم: (11) into گسستن as گسستن from گسٹم.

It is substituted (1) in the aorist of Persian verbs for ش as شناسم from شناس: (2) for ش as شمس when adopted into Arabic for مسک Musk.

In the aorist of some verbs it suffers elision, as گریستن from گریستن To weep.

Prefixed to the aorist of Arabic verbs it implies quickness or expedition, as سہم He will quickly assist.

ش

ش shīn, called شِین shīn or شِین shīn is the thirteenth letter of the Arabic and sixteenth of the Persian alphabet, corresponding nearly to श in Sanskrit. Its sound is that of the English sh; of the French ch, as in cheval; and, of the Italian sc, as in scimia. In denoting numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 300. It is used as an abbreviation for the word شَمَال North; and, in dates of letters, &c. for the month شَعْبَان.

In Persian it may be used, 1. To mark the pronoun of the third person singular, in the genitive or accusative case; as, نامش His name, نایش His praise, گفتمش I said to him: and, it is frequently disjoined from the noun to which it has reference; as in this line of Ghanīmat, زحیرتہا خرد گردید آبش His understanding was turned to water by astonishment, for ازحیرتہا خردش آب شد. If, moreover, it relates to the same person as the agent of the sentence, it stands for the reciprocal pronoun خود; as

نہد خور ہر طرف دامی زتار
کز آن رو پرتوی گردد شکارش

The sun spreads in every direction a net made of his rays; that, by means thereof he may catch a reflected image. 2. To form the ḥāṣil bi-l-muṣṣad, verbal noun or noun of action. In this case it is quiescent, and requires the vowel kusr to the preceding letter; as, پرسش Asking, سوزش Burning, &c.

In the conjugation of Persian verbs, to form the aorist and tenses derived from the aorist, ش preceding تن of the infinitive is changed, if it follow ا, into ر; as نگارم &c. from نگاشتن; or, if it follow any other letter, sometimes into ر, as گذرم from گذشتن; sometimes into س, as نویسم from نوشتن; and, خ of the infinitive is changed into ش, as فروشم from فروختن.

For ش is sometimes substituted چ, as پاچان for سارک Sprinkling; sometimes س, as سارک for سارک A species of nightingale; sometimes, in the end of words, چ, as کاش for کاش Would to God! And, it may be substituted for س; as کشتی for کشتی Wrestling.

In Arabic, when a verb, the first radical letter of which is ش, appears in the form افتعال, the servile ت is sometimes though but rarely united, by ilghām, with the ش; as اشبه ishshabuha for اشتبه ishtabaha, He doubted.

ص sūd, called صاد مهملة and صاد غیر منقوله the fourteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not properly occur in the Persian language; but, in a few words it has, in modern times, been substituted for the original س to distinguish them from others of a different signification; as, in صد, originally صد One hundred; and in شصت originally شست Sixty; to prevent their being confounded with صد A wall, and شست An aim. It has no corresponding letter in the Sanskrit alphabet. In Persia and Hindūstān, its pronunciation is hardly distinguishable from that of س; but, among the Arabs, its sound is stronger than the last and with a mixture of w. In the notation of numbers by the letters of the Arabic alphabet it represents 90. As an abbreviation it is used for صفر the name of the second month in the Arabian calendar.

It is one of the radical letters. Some Arabic words are written indifferently with س and ص; as صراط, or سراط A road. Sometimes, when quiescent in the infinitive of a verb, it is changed into ز as فز for فسد To open a vein. When Persian words containing چ are introduced into Arabic, the چ is changed into ص as صين for چين China.

ض zad, called ضاد معجمه ضاد and ضاد منقوطه the fifteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not occur in Persian, nor is there any corresponding letter in Sanskrit. In Persia and Hindūstān its pronunciation is hardly distinguished from that of ز; but, in Arabia it is a mixed sound of d, th, and w, only to be acquired from natives of that country. In the notation of numbers by the Arabic letters, it stands for 800. It is one of the radical letters. The ذ of Persian words, when they are introduced into Arabic, is often changed into this letter, as ضحاک for ذحاک See under ح. When three of these letters meet together, as in تقتضى the darting of a hawk upon his prey, the last is changed into ي, as تقتضي. And in verbs of the measure افعل the servile ت after this letter is changed to ط or to ض as اضطراب or اضراب from غرب.

ط to'e, or in Arabic tā, called طائي or طائي مهمله the sixteenth letter of the Arabic alphabet, does not occur in pure Persian; but, in compliance with Arabic orthography, it is sometimes introduced in Persian words which were originally written with ت; as, طبرزد for تبرزد, Sugar-candy; طبرخون for تبرخون, Red sanders.

It has no corresponding character in Sanskrit. Its genuine sound is stronger and harsher than that of ت. As a numeral, in the numerical application of the Arabic alphabet, it stands for 9: and, in almanacks it represents the sign Capricorn. When this letter is the first radical of Arabic verbs, the servile ت of the measures افتعال and تفاعل may be changed into ط, which is joined by idghām with the ط of the root; and, if the first letter thus becomes quiescent, a hamza is prefixed; as, for تطهر tatahhara طاهر ittahhara.
